

Bump & Beyond: Training Pregnant and Postpartum Clients

Help Mum Stay Fit & Healthy During Pregnancy

Course Overview

“Pregnant women should not exercise” is an old myth that continues to persist in Asian culture. In fact, pregnancy is not a disability and experts at the American College of Obstetricians and Gynaecologists (ACOG) have shown again and again that healthy mothers-to-be should exercise to minimize the potential for any medical conditions that may arise with pregnancy.

In our Bump & Beyond: Training Pregnant Clients course, you will gain a better understanding of the physiological changes in each trimester of pregnancy and how to address each stage with specific exercises plus essential relaxation techniques for mothers-to-be. The course also covers the numerous benefits of exercising during pregnancy for both mother and baby, as well as the benefits for labour.

Moreover, most new mothers are unaware that it is recommended to start certain fundamental exercises as early as possible after giving birth, in order to speed up the recovery from postpartum issues like Diastasis Recti (DR) and pelvic floor trauma. In our Bump & Beyond: Training Postpartum Clients course, we will guide you in understanding the different types and processes of birth to help you design a specific training program for postpartum clients. We also examine postpartum concerns, contraindications, postural issues, abdominal care and nutritional guidelines to help new mothers go through this new stage of their lives.

Course Highlights

- The do's and don'ts to exercises during the pre and post-partum period
- Step by step coaching to pelvic floor training
- Soft skills needed to manage Pre and post natal clients as both these phases can be an emotional/sensitive time for them
- Exercises for abdominal separation
- Train a mum to be a mum - learn exercises that makes mum stronger in their daily activities
- Sample pre and post-partum training program according to trimesters.
